

INTERNATIONAL INSTITUTE FOR JEWISH GENEALOGY AND PAUL JACOBI CENTER

AT THE JEWISH NATIONAL AND UNIVERSITY LIBRARY, JERUSALEM

Publication of IJG Researches

Over the last seven years, the Institute has sponsored almost 20 projects, mainly in realm of pure research, usually inter-disciplinary in nature and, to a lesser extent, in the category of tools and technologies for the Jewish family historian.

The range of these studies has been quite remarkable both in terms of time and space – from 14th and 15th century Spain and the Mediterranean Basin, through early-modern Italy, 18th and 19th century Hungary and late Ottoman Palestine, to pre-World War I Lithuania and inter-war Latvia, up to and including Europe as a whole during the Shoah. The results of the researches have in most cases been posted on the Institute's Website (at <http://ijg.org/research>). However, the time has now come to publish the best of them in a printed collection of IJG researches for use in private and university libraries.

The cost of such a volume, containing 10-12 studies, will be approximately $7,000,

Tentative "Table of Contents":

- The Ties that Bind: Jewish Kinship Networks and Modernization in Darbenai and its Diaspora, by Prof. Eric Goldstein of Emory University, Georgia, USA.
- Crossing the Boundaries: Jewish Networks in Early-Modern Italy between the Mediterranean and the New World (16th – 18 Centuries), by Dr. Federica Francesconi of the University Bologna, Italy.
- A Genealogically Centred Approach to the Historical Geography of Eretz Yisrael: Case-studies of the Moyal and Chlouche Families in Jaffa during the late Ottoman and British Mandatory Periods, by Prof. Ruth Kark of the Hebrew University of Jerusalem, and Dr. Joseph Glass of Centennial College, Toronto, Canada.
- A Systematic Study of the Riga House Registers as a Source for Jewish Genealogy in Inter-War Latvia, by Professor Rubin Ferber, Chair of the Center for Judaic Studies, et al. at the University of Latvia in Riga, Latvia.
- Hungarian Jewish Families in the Modern Era – A Prosopographic Study of the Munks and Goldzihers, by Dr. Erzsébet Mislovics of the University of Budapest, Hungary.
- Transfer of Goods – Transfer of Culture Jewish families and the tobacco monopoly in the Habsburg Monarchy, by Dr. Louise Hecht, Palacky University, Olomouc, Czech Republic.
- Sephardic Origins and Transformations in the Spanish Extremadura, by Prof. Roger L. Martinez, of the University of Colorado, Colorado, USA.
- Family and Kinship in the Jewish City of Piotrków Trybunalski in the 19th Century, by Dr. Tomasz Jankowski, the University of Wrocław, Poland.
- A Genealogical History of the Jews of Pinczow (Poland) in the 18th & 19th centuries, by Prof. Heshel Teitelbaum, University of Ottawa, Canada.
- Jews, Frankists and Converts in Habsburg Moravia, 1700-1900, Prof. Michael Miller, University of Budapest, Hungary.
- Beider-Morse Phonetic Matching, by Dr. Alexander Beider (Paris, France) & Dr. Stephen Morse (San Francisco, USA).

- Strategies for the Integration of Genealogical Datasets, by Prof. H. D. Wagner (Weizmann Institute, Israel), Dr.K. Klauzinska and J. Zajdel (both of Wroclaw, Poland).
- The Jacobi Absolute Generations Scale, by Dr. Chanan Rapaport (Jerusalem).